GameSpace's "St. Marys Nuclear Escape Room"

By Stewart Grant

In recent years, "escape rooms" have been growing in popularity with adults and kids alike. And now, thanks to GameSpace owners Scott Sumpter and Niki Rumble, there's an awesome escape room right here in downtown St. Marys.

An escape room is a team adventure activity where players work together to find clues, think creatively and solve puzzles to achieve certain objectives within a pre-determined period of time. Escape rooms are set in a variety of themes, including prison cells, dungeons and space stations.

The GameSpace Escape Room is based around the catastrophic situation brewing at "St. Marys Nuclear". The lone genius in charge has disappeared, thus leaving the plant in jeopardy of a full meltdown, endangering the lives of nearly 8,000 civilians nearby! Only the team of players within the nuclear reactor control centre can save the Town of St. Marys from certain disaster.

Personally I had never participated in an Escape Room before, so this Tuesday I tried it out along with my kids, Jake and Sydney. Although we solved a number of challenges along the way, we weren't quite able to avert disaster for the Town within the 60 minute time allotment. Despite the nuclear explosion wiping out the community, the escape room was a really fun experience and a good test for us.

GameSpace's "St. Marys Nuclear" Escape Room is a great local activity for a birthday party, corporate event or just for fun in general. Between two and four team members are recommended, and the cost for adults is $25, or $20 for kids under 12 years old. For more information or to book a reservation online, please visit www.thegamespace.ca/escape-room/, call 226-884-7868, or email info@thegamespace.ca. GameSpace is located at 114 Queen Street East in downtown St. Marys.
